First Team Perfecting Combination Work by Playing Together - Tournament Pros-

The Oahu polo team is rapidly developing into the sort of smooth-working machine that keeps the ball moving in the right direction, and that gets it between the sticks three times out of five when there is any chance at all to score. During the early part of the season, when the local players were split up into color teams, the men who will wear the blue of Oahu in the coming interisland championships got plenty of individual practise, but they were sadly lacking in combination work, due to the fact that they were continually playing behind or in front of new men. For the last few weeks, however, the first team has been playing together, and right up to the time given every chance to polish up their latest first-hand news from the scene team work, against the strongest second four that can be brought together.

The personnel of the Oahu team has been known for some time. Sam Bald. of a surprise to Honolulu fans, who win will play No. 1, Harold Castle 2, Walter Dillingham 3 and Arthur Rice back. This is the strongest combination that the local club can make, and there is really no question about any of the places. Until Arthur Rice came · over from Kauai to live, and became one of the Oahu regulars, there was considerable uncertainty about the No. rival settled it. The men are going through the fight, much less wins it. yachtsmen and their friends, and an each other's style of play to a nicety. They have confidence in each other and in the team as a whole, and this shows strongly in their play.

Last Saturday the first team defeated the Reds by 4 3-4 to nothing. Dr. Baldwin, Walter Macfarlane, Harold Dillingham, R. W. Shingle and Lieutenant Andrews were all in the saddle for the Reds at one time or another, and put up a brand of polo not to be taken lightly. Wednesday afternoon there will be another practise game, and Saturday a regular match will be played.

This year's tournament promises to be the classiest ever held here. Maui is sending over an exceptionally strong team, and the Cavalry players are working their heads off to perfectly round off their game. All three teams fit to cut loose. Plast is, one event is a near-championand the other is a joke, but the fact remains that titles are at stake, and that both fights are of considerable importance in sporting circles. The Johnson-Flynn mill, at Las Vegas, is, of course, the joke, while the meeting between Ad Wolgast and the Mexican scrapper Joe Rivers is not creating the interest that other ligheweight championships have stirred up.

The yachting crowd, recently arrived on the transpacific racers, bring the of the Wolgast-Rivers affair, where they heard a lot of comment on the chances of each. The pomps and vanities that go with a championship mean more to Lil' Arthuh than they did to any heavyweight who has been cock of the walk or many years past. The black man simply eats up the flattery and adulation that comes to him now, not only from his own people, but from a certain class of whites, and it would take a pot of money to make him lie down to a big stew like Flynn.
